

NASENCo Award

National Award for Special Educational Needs Coordination (2022-23)

University of East London

This National Award for SEN is through a partnership between Barking and Dagenham and the University of East London (UEL). This mandatory accredited course for new SENCOs is being run locally as a collaboration between Barking and Dagenham, Havering, Thurrock, Brent, Barnet and Harrow local authorities.

Each module consists of six whole days plus an extra twilight for module 1 and 2. Module one is completed in the Autumn term and module two in the Summer term. The course is accredited by The University of East London and all credits gained are transferable to other courses both at UEL and other universities.

What the NASENCO course offers:

- Support from experienced practicing SEND and Inclusion specialists through the course.
- The opportunity to choose from two cohorts in the East and North of London.
- Academic support for your written assignment and portfolio from a highly experienced practitioner.
- Opportunities to build your network with other SENCOs.
  - You are invited join the virtual professional network of SENCOs, integrating both new and experienced at free events hosted by BDSIP.

“The NASENCo course made me realise that I am a SENDCo not a SEND-do. It allowed me to develop my leadership skills and take on a strategic role as a SENDCo.”

“This course has made me a much better SENCO and school leader. The course has made me more critical of policy developments and the way things are done, nationally, locally and in my current setting. Critiquing policy and research has given me confidence to make necessary changes and challenge practices that are not in the best interest of the learner. Thank you to all involved in the design and running of this course, especially Chris – a fantastic tutor.”
